Professional Service Providers for Home & Commercial Oil Tanks

INSPECTION • REMOVAL • DECOMMISSIONING

Many Washington State homes and businesses are still using heating oil to heat their premises. Unfortunately, these heating oil tanks may be 30-50 years old and nearing (or past) the time when they will begin leaking. Today, many people have switched from oil heat to natural gas or electricity as a means of heating. When it's time to deal with your tank, whether installing a new one or decommissioning to switch to another source of heat, there are many questions about how to properly deal with the "unused" tank. The Remediators provides professional advice and service to safely deal with these problems.
